MARION, OHIO, Sept. 24.—The administration's merchant marine policy was assailed by Senator Harding today in a front-porch speech, in which he declared that this and other issues of the campaign were too poor to "be obscured by any sort of vaudewille performance on the part of any one."

Charging that the Shipping Board had been "a continual flasco," he charging that the Shipping Board had been "a continual flasco," he said that with efficient management a nation of such marine resources should have permitted shipping lines to all parts of the world as soon as the war was over. One of his first acts as chief executive, he said, would be to inaugurate a policy that would "unfur! the flag again on every sea."

the Soviet terms offered at Minsk being the order of the day. Consequently, the Polish delegation was unable to make any response directly to the unexpected terms, which M. Joffe explained were framed at Moscow Thursday by the executive committee of the government. He said the Bolshevists were not anxious to prolong the war, but were anxious to prolong the war, but were anxious to know immediately whether peace was impossible.

The Bolshevists, by their move, are considered to have gained a tactical advantage by the sudden stroke, which precludes procrastination and makes the Polish delegates position difficult as they had expected a deliberate settlement of peace preliminaries before armistice terms.

"To turn Taft loose as a speaker would be to invite a dog fight with the Johnson-Borah groups who have been tamed by Harding's declaration of hostility to the league. They are none too declie at best, and if we turn loose Taft and Root there will be the devil to pay. I hope Taft and Root will appreciate the very great service they can render the party by going fishing."

May Ask Taft "Later."

The only explanation to be obtained at Republican headquarters yesterday for the failure of the national committee to invite Mr. Taft to take a hand in the campaign was that "We haven't got around to it yet; he will probably speak later on."

Mr. Taft's admirers are quite as positive the other way. They make no secret of their determination to have Mr. Harding further elucidate his stand on the league before President Wilson and Governor Cox start shelling his position. This will be met by a countermove to compel Governor Cox to repudiate President Wilson and Governor Cox to repudiate President Wilson's policies—Burlesonism and Palmerism among others—which have already had the effect of driving from the Democratic support hundreds of thousands of radicals.

Republican leaders admit that their ticket will not directly benefit through defections of this sort, because most of the Democratic radical deserters will flop to the Socialists, who are certain to poil a record-breaking vote for their imprisoned presidential candidate.
